Grieving son Nick Travers broke down in tears as he described how Caroline Davies died on September 11 last year, as she was returning to hospital after the abortion she carried out at home. Mr Travers told Gloucestershire Coroner's Court how his mother, who had met a man online, had been undergoing pain relief treatment and was worried about her condition when the pair met at a service station and then drove off to his home in Tewkesbury. "She said she'd been crying for a long time and it was just like I'd known it was coming," he said. "She woke me around four o'clock and said she needed to talk to me and I said I was asleep." Ms Davies was found dead the next day at the Shell garage in Gloucester. "I woke and he was gone," Mr Travers said. "He said 'there was a car there' and I said 'I didn't see one, there's no car here, what did you do?'. "Then he told me, he'd gone to the caravan. "He'd taken some stuff from the bathroom, made out it was pain killers, put them in his bag and taken them. "He said he'd dosed himself. He said he hadn't done it, I wasn't
