although mila can't express a sense of fear, she does show an obvious concern when there is a chance that something bad may happen. this is something that mila has shared with her mother as it has with a handful of others. she has often uttered the words "terrible," or "scary," or "i don't like." in november 2013, mila was diagnosed with batten disease, a devastating, ultra-rare and fatal disorder. the most common cause of inherited ataxia is due to mutations in *cln1*or *cln2*genes, and the *cln6*gene has been associated with a more varied set of symptoms. when mila's doctors sequenced the protein-coding part of her genome, they found an error in one copy of a gene called cln7, which codes for a protein that likely helps move molecules across the membrane of lysosomes. both copiesone from mom, one from dadof cln7 need to be mutated to cause the disease, yet only the one from mila's father appeared defective. in 2013, mila was diagnosed with batten disease. she was premature at birth, though her birth weight was in the normal range. her parents remembered that she was clumsy when she walked, unable to stand up without help, and unable to make eye contact. her word skills were good, but she had trouble remembering words and needed constant repetition. mila was born with dystonia, her mother says . she had dark circles under her eyes and was hungry often. as a 2 year old, mila loved dressing up and playing with her dolls. she was good at reading books and had a clear interest in all the animals in the clinic. mila loved learning new things and had an enthusiastic personality .

i definitely have the confidence in me, and i have the friends and family that support me and helps me to get along with everything, said mila. i cant imagine myself doing anything without that support. i need that little nudge to get up and do something ive put it off on. i know that there are ways to help those who have needs but make sure that you are the one who seeks out help. if you are giving someone something for free, you are going to get something back in return. if youre not seeking anything in return, you will get nothing in return. if you wish to help, you need to do it through faith and the will of god. while milas lemonade is a stand that requires little maintenance, lawana has to remind herself that shes not seeking profits. when lawana started this business, she wanted to create something that brought joy to children and families. she doesnt see milas lemonade as an end game, only as a means to getting into public schools. its about those who are looking to build lasting relationships. mila is already seeing her lemonade stand make a difference. while its a little lemonade stand that is on the corner, lawana wants milas lemonade to be known as the place where that dad and mom can go to have fun and enjoy a lemonade. when you hold a lemonade stand, there is no doubt that kids have more fun than adults, lawana said. i cant imagine what it will be like to have it in a school. i hope some of the parents that are supporting this will get a seat at the table to learn how to be more businesslike so that they can apply those skills to their own kids. 5ec8ef588b
